PORTUGAL UNCOVERED

Our top 10 highlights

The readers of Conde Nast Traveller have recently voted Portugal the best travel destination of 2022.

“Portugal is a country that just keeps getting better,” Conde Nast said, “with a growing appreciation, not only for its beaches, but its food and wine, and with lesser-known corners alongside the obvious hotspots.”

We couldn't agree more, so here are a few of our favourite Portugal highlights to get you excited to explore this magical destination:

1. Historic Porto

Spread along the banks of the River Douro, Porto is Portugal's colourful hub, renowned for its vibrant setting and charming ambiance. A Unesco World Heritage Site, listed for its astonishing array of landmarks, the history of which stretches back over 2,000 years, Porto's buildings are painted every colour of the spectrum, making it one of the most picturesque cities in Europe. While here, exploring on foot, we discover the icons and hidden gems as your guide fills you in on politics, religion, traditions, gastronomy and local customs. Naturally there will be chances to sample the fortified wine for which this city is so famous – port.

2. Douro Valley

One of the most picturesque, and oldest, wine regions in the world, the Douro River flows gently through a remarkable landscape of steep terrace vineyards, rocky bluffs, white-washed wine estates (quintas) and picture-perfect villages. As well as a delight for the eyes, the Douro Valley is also a delight for the tastebuds, thanks to the plentiful wine cellars that also occupy the area. We spend a wonderfully relaxing day making the most of the valley, cruising the river on a historic Rabelo boat, taking a scenic rail trip and visiting a family-run winery for a leisurely tour and tasting.

3. Sintra

Sintra is a fairy-tale come to life, with its ornate palaces and pastel-hued villas nestled among the luxuriant forests, parks and gardens that occupy dramatic hills that roll down to the sparkling blue waters of the Atlantic. Sintra-Vila, the Unesco World Heritage-listed historic centre, is a unique and fascinating glimpse of how architecture can work in harmony with nature. Rising above it all is the striking Pena Palace; built as a summer residence for the royal family, it is an eclectic mix of architectural styles, exuding an undeniable romance. Head up to the very top for unbeatable views over the surrounding landscapes.

4. Alentejo

The Alentejo region might be best known for the beautiful beaches of the Algarve but travel inland away from those purely seeking the sun and you'll discover a rural paradise of rolling hills, cork forests, olive groves and vineyards. There's also the occasional medieval fortress or abandoned chapel dotted among the landscapes, giving a wonderfully timeless appeal. Here, we visit a centuries-old cork farm to learn from the owners about cork farming along with their other crops, followed by a chance to enjoy a taste of the delicious wines and organic produce from the farm.

5. Geres National Park

Peneda-Gerês is Portugal's only national park and is a world away from the hustle and bustle of the cities and popular beach resorts. Hundreds of square miles of oak and pine forests envelop a rugged landscapes of granite cliffs, waterfalls, rushing rivers and tranquil lagoons. Prepare to be captivated by the wild natural beauty of the park as you spend the day in the heart of this spectacular wilderness walking, picnicking and even taking a refreshing swim if you feel so inclined.

6. Fado music

The soundtrack to enchanting streets, fado music can be heard drifting out of the bars, cafes and restaurants of whichever city in Portugal you happen to be wandering. Famous for its expressive and melancholic tone, songs tend to express the struggles, battles and experiences of the musicians or tell the folk stories and history of the local area. We include a fascinating evening walking tour on our Portugal adventure that allows you to discover the roots and the emotion of fado. Led by your fado singer guide, you'll discover some of the traditional fado haunts of Old Lisbon, and visit a Fado House, where you will enjoy an incredible live performance.

7. Culinary delights

From port wines to sweet desserts, Portugal is a foodie heaven. Renowned for sweet pastries such as pastel de nata (egg custard tart), Portuguese cuisine is heavily influenced by the country's seafaring history, when merchants criss-crossed the globe trading everything from spices to seafood. There is nothing more Portuguese than biting into the local pastry 'talasnico', made from honey chestnuts and almonds, alongside an array of cheeses and a glass of port wine, something you'll do, touring with us!

8. Old Lisbon

A maze of winding, narrow streets, charming hidden alleyways and orange roofs as far as the eye can see, Old Lisbon offers a unique experience of Portugal. With castles, museums and cathedrals galore, the beautiful historic centre is brimming with incredible history, vibrant culture and bustling city life. On the final day of the tour, you'll explore this incredible area with a guided walking tour, a ride on a private tram through the most picturesque districts and enjoy a relaxing journey along the Tagus River by sailing boat. It all ends perfectly with dinner at a rooftop restaurant with magical views across the city.

9. Tomar

Rich in art, culture and charm, Tomar is a city that has kept one foot in the past. At its heart is the Unesco World Heritage Convento de Cristo, built in the 12th century as the headquarters of the Knights Templar, a building that plays an integral role in Portugal's history, and it's from here that the delightful streets of convents, chapels and museums meander. The intriguing town is a photographer's dream, with architecture unlike anywhere else in the country but, with its rustic and raw character, it's also as Portuguese as they come.

10. Guimaraes

Sitting in the north of Portugal, the city of Guimaraes is famous for its well-preserved medieval architecture combined with its modern and forward-thinking personality. The historic town centre is a Unesco World Heritage Site due to the fact it showcases the old with the new while retaining plenty of Portuguese character. Another colourful glimpse into historic Portugal, this is a place very close to the heart of the country; often called the 'birthplace of Portugal', it was here that Portugal's first king, Alfonso Henriques, was born and where the Battle of São Mamede, a decisive moment in the foundation of Portugal, was fought.

You gotta have Seoul

South Korea's dynamic capital is a melting pot of the old – Buddhist temples, palaces and street markets, and the new – shining skyscrapers, shopping malls and pop culture. Here are our top picks of sensational Seoul's highlights.

Seoul Tower

Standing at 236m with a 360-degree panoramic view of Seoul – this is one view you don't want to miss. Don't forget to also try the Sky Restroom which is located in the observation deck with breathtaking views.

Gyeongbok Palace

Gyeongbok Palace was the main royal palace of the Joseon Dynasty, built in 1395. The palace has been rebuilt after destruction several times and today houses two museums, ornamental gardens and some of Seoul's most outstanding architectural sights.

Did someone say shopping?

Myeongdong Street is a shopping mecca with many stores open until 11pm. You can find all sorts of items including cosmetics, clothes, and popular dining options. Not only is Myeongdong a popular retail precinct, it is also Seoul's commercial, banking, and culture hub.

Insadong Antique Alley

Experience traditional Korean culture and art in Insadong Street. Stretching over 700m, stores here specialise in a wide variety of Korean goods including Chima Jeogori (traditional clothing), hanji (traditional paper), teas, pottery and folk crafts.

Street food

Street food is one of the best ways to experience the local culture and Seoul is no exception. Try Gangjeong, Korean fried chicken coated with a sweet soy sauce or Buchimgae, a delicious pancake with seafood and kimchi. Gyeran-ppang is a popular street snack consisting of a light, fluffy sweet bread with a whole egg inside or if you love spicy food you should definitely try Tteokbokki, stir-fried rice cakes marinated with Korean traditional spices.

JAPAN'S ENCHANTED GARDENS

Japanese culture is interwoven with nature and perhaps nowhere better is this connection evident than in their beautiful gardens.

The Garden as a Work of Art

In popular culture, the Japanese garden is an embodiment of nature for its creators and carers. The seasonal changes that are featured in the images are said to mirror the transitions we all go through over the course of our lives. Through the plants, trees, sand and stones, each element has a spiritual and natural significance.

In a tradition that goes back over 1,400 years, gardens were made to create the perfect environment in order to entice the gods down from the heavens to interact with the humans on Earth. Spirituality plays a key role in the design and enjoyment of Japanese gardens – with altars, religious icons and small memorials in many.

History, natural beauty and tranquillity all blend to create a Japanese garden and they are the perfect way to enjoy your travels to the Far East.

Discover Japan

13 days Fully Inclusive Touring from £5,790pp

Tokyo – Mt Fuji – Takayama – Kanazawa – Kyoto – Nara – Koyasan – Osaka

Most of our Japan tours include visits to beautiful Japanese gardens. Our Discover Japan tour takes in the iconic highlights of the country as well as many exquisite gardens including Hamarikyu Gardens in Tokyo, the Zen masterpiece of Ryoanji in Kyoto and Kenrokuen, in Kanazawa, one of Japan's 'Three Great Gardens'.

The Ultimate Japan Tour for First Timers

Incredible food, unique culture, rich history and futuristic thinking; no wonder a Japan holiday is high up the bucket list of many. But where are the best places to go? Where can you experience that wonderful culture, admire the natural beauty and get a taste of that rich history? Look no further than 'Japan Uncovered' our ultimate Japan itinerary for first time visitors...

OSAKA

Rebellious, vibrant and quirky, Osaka is all about the big, the brash, and the bright lights. Long an affluent trading hub, its residents have always had the funds to have fun. This is reflected in the plentiful entertainment options that are easily found amongst its shimmering skyscrapers, including the buzzing Dotonburi district, and for those after a bit of Osaka's rich history, the magnificent Osaka Castle. Nicknamed 'Japan's Kitchen', Osaka is also the place to eat well. Be it in restaurants or from street food stalls, whatever your taste is bound to be delicious!

NARA

Nara is a charming city full of historical treasures. Japan's first capital, founded in the year 710, it is home to a centuries old legacy and some of Japan's oldest Buddhist temples. Wander through the peaceful Nara Park to meet tame Sika deer (some will bow in exchange for a tasty treat) and visit Todai-ji, one of Japan's most sacred temples. Nara is so wonderfully compact we have time to pop over to Isuien Garden, to contemplate the Zen landscaping of a traditional Japanese garden.

HIROSHIMA

Despite its dark legacy, Hiroshima is a city with a sunny disposition. Friendly and picturesque, it sits on the shores of the Seto Inland Sea and basks in its bright future. Hiroshima's centre is dedicated to the Peace Memorial Park, a tranquil green space full of moving monuments to those who died after the atomic bombing of 1945; the corresponding museum is a tough but necessary visit. We also take a short ferry across the water to the holy island of Miyajima, an atmospheric spot centred around the Itsukushima Shrine.

KYOTO

In need of little introduction, Kyoto is a modern city with an ancient heart. Capital from 794 to 1868, it is home to countless temples, shrines and age-old traditions that have survived centuries of feuding, war and more recently, modernisation. The golden temple Kinkaku-ji is a must see, along with the Zen garden at Ryoan-ji and a stroll through the torii gates at Fushimi Inari Taisha. Wandering the alleyways of Gion, the old geisha district, you may be lucky enough to catch a glimpse of an elegant kimono or structured up-do flitting around a corner and we'll experience the age-old rituals of a traditional tea ceremony accompanied by a Tea Master.

KANAZAWA

Set in the heart of the scenic Hokuriku region, Kanazawa may be small, but it packs a big punch in terms of culture and charisma! It has wonderfully preserved traditional neighbourhoods, making it the perfect place to get an authentic idea of what it would have been like to stroll through the samurai and geisha districts during their golden ages. As well as visiting 17th century Kenrokuen, one of the Three Great Gardens of Japan, you'll also get to try your hand at the ancient art of making washi paper and sleep overnight in a traditional Ryoken Inn.

TAKAYAMA

Watched over by the Japanese Alps, Takayama offers a glimpse of a rural, more quaint side of Japan. Its pretty riverside setting and traditional houses are perfect for slow strolls, whilst the Miyagawa morning market is one of the largest in the country and showcases the varied produce of the region alongside fun souvenirs.

NAGANO

A small and friendly city, Nagano is also nestled amongst the foothills of the Japanese Alps and surrounded by orchards and farms. The area is also particularly good for growing wasabi, thanks to the pure melt water from the mountains and you'll visit a wasabi farm to learn about the production of a typically Japanese ingredient. Close by is the onsen town of Yudanaka, known for a hot spring in particular. A walk through the woods of Jigokudani Monkey Park will bring you to a pool exclusively for the use of Japanese macaques, or Snow Monkeys, who come down from the mountains to bathe and play in the hot mineral waters.

MOUNT FUJI

Japan has had a long love affair with the perfect symmetry of Mount Fuji, its essence captured in plentiful drawings, paintings and poems over the centuries. None, though, can do its majesty justice, you really have to go and see it for yourself! We give you plenty of opportunities to enjoy it from every angle; a cruise on Lake Ashi, the reflections in the waters of the lakes of Fuji Five Lakes, ascending the volcano's slopes to the 5th Station or boarding the Hakone ropeway to soar over the hilltops to the volcanic Owakudani Valley.

TOKYO

Japan's capital, a mega-metropolis, Tokyo is one of the world's most incredible cities. It's here that you can soak up everything that is quintessentially Japanese – from the age-old traditions still performed at Shinto shrines, to the ultra-modern neon lights and pop culture of some of the city's unique districts. Areas such as Asakusa are the perfect example of how modern and traditional rub along so well together, with Tokyo's oldest Buddhist Temple in the literal shadow of the 634 metre Skytree tower! Sumo wrestling is arguably the best-known traditional thing about Japan – the rituals involved in its performance are as fascinating to watch as the wrestling itself. If you happen to be in the Tokyo at the time of one of the tournaments, tickets to the sumo tournaments are included!

CHINA – 10 FABULOUS FACTS

As the fourth largest country in the world, China's sweeping landscapes harbour some truly inspiring wonders. Prepare to be astounded...

1 Avatar is real!

Well perhaps not quite but the soaring sandstone peaks of Zhangjiajie National Forest Park were the inspiration for the Hallelujah Mountains in 2009 blockbuster Avatar. This otherworldly landscape was declared China's first ever national forest park in 1982. With some 3,000 towering pillars, each hundreds of feet tall and covered in a lush green foliage, Zhangjiajie National Forest Park was also recognised as a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1992.

2 China boasts beautiful tropical beaches

China may be famous for its dramatic landscapes but it's also home to some balmy stretches of sand. Less than 30 minutes from the bustling metropolis of Hong Kong pristine white sand beaches, lush forest-lined mountains and beautifully blue water can be found on the largest of Hong Kong's islands – Lantau.

3 It is home to the world's fifth largest desert

Covering huge swathes of northern and north-western China, the Gobi Desert measures more than 1,000 miles from east to west and 500 miles from north to south. Unusually, the Gobi is a very cold desert, seeing frost and occasionally a dusting of snow on its soaring dunes. Its harsh climate sees the temperature change by up to 35 degrees, not within a season, but within 24 hours!

4 It is home to the world's third-longest river

Spanning 3,950 miles, the Yangtze River is the longest in Asia, and the third longest in the world. This impressive waterway, cutting through towering gorges and dense forests, is also the longest in the world to flow entirely within one country. For thousands of years, the Yangtze has played a pivotal role in China's history, culture and economy. It contributes greatly to the country's wealth and is home to many endemic species.

5 Giant pandas can only be found in the mountains of Central China

Giant pandas are native to south central China and this remains the only natural habitat for this adorable creature on the planet. Many giant pandas still live in a few mountain ranges of central China, mainly in Sichuan, but the march of progress in China has put pressure on populations. Fortunately, organisations such as Chengdu Giant Panda Breeding Center have stepped in to help. Home to roughly 50 pandas including an adorable baby panda house, the centre is also home to huge groves of bamboo planted to sate the fussy appetites of the residents.

6 40% of the country is natural grassland

Alpine pastures, lush meadows and vast emerald green rolling plains cover over a third of the country. As China is so huge that 40% makes them the second largest grasslands in the world. The Hulunbuir Grassland in the Inner Mongolian is the same size as the UK.

7 Over 100 of China's cities are home to over 1 million people

Home to roughly 1.3 billion people, China has the largest population in the world and boasts an astonishing number of huge cities, 102 with over 1 million at last count. By comparison the USA has just 10 and the UK two. The futuristic city of Shanghai is one of the biggest cities in the world by population, at roughly 24 million.

8 China has the greatest altitude difference on Earth

Home to the world's highest peak, Mount Everest at 8,848 metres and the peaceful Ayding Lake, which sits 154 metres below sea level, no country on the planet can boast such a huge range in altitude. In fact, the country is full of fascinating highs and lows. Zhangjiajie Grand Canyon has the world's highest and longest glass bridge running across the canyon for 430 metres and Yarlung Tsangpo Canyon in Tibet is the deepest canyon in the world, stretching 300 miles between the Himalayan summits and reaching an incredible 5,800 metres at its deepest point.

Discover China with Wendy Wu Tours

Wendy Wu Tours is the UK's No.1 tour operator to China. We offer over 20 escorted group tours of this incredible country from 9 to 27 days. But which one is best for you?

9 One third of the country is made up of mountains

The towering peak of Mount Everest isn't the only star of the show in China. With more than 35 mountain ranges found in all corners of the land, China has almost too many famous peaks to mention. Top of your bucket list could be Jade Dragon Snow Mountain, a small but dramatic peak in the Yunnan Province of southwest China that is home to lush forests and meadows blooming with wild peonies and orchids. Or perhaps we can tempt you with Mount Emei, a UNESCO World Heritage Site soaring over 3,000 metres high dotted with Buddhist monasteries and temples?

10 China shares a border with 14 nations

Here's one for the dinner party trivia. China has the highest number of neighbours touching its border of any nation. India, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Tajikistan, Kyrgyzstan, Kazakhstan, Mongolia, Russia, North Korea, Vietnam, Laos, Myanmar, Bhutan and Nepal all border this great country. Sharing a border with so many nations has its quirks. Trains crossing between Mongolia and China need to have their wheels changed because railway tracks in China are narrower than in Mongolia.

Journey Through the Wonders of Jordan

We're delighted to bring our fully inclusive style of touring to Jordan, a country where, as an explorer, you are richly rewarded with mystical desert landscapes, ancient monuments, cosmopolitan towns and cities, and a culture of hospitality that stretches back to antiquity.

A timeless land, in Jordan you can flit between the present day and a time when camel caravans carried frankincense and spices back and forth along the King's Highway. To a time when the region was criss-crossed by Nabataean traders, Roman legions, Crusaders and Muslim armies, each contributing to the sights and culture that is so enthralling today.

On our tour you'll discover all these jewels and so much more, on one epic Journey Through Jordan.

Petra

Petra is one of those places that, no matter how times you see it in pictures, you'll never be fully prepared for seeing it in person. Tucked away in a sandstone escarpment, the city is hewn into pink-hued sandstone, the facades still bearing the echoes of their once ornate carvings after centuries of desert winds. A wealthy Nabataean city in the 3rd century CE, it was lost to the world for 500 years; it's those years of abandonment that have lent Petra the air of mystery and adventure that makes it so alluring to explore and the 'bucket list' sight that it is today.

Jerash

Jerash was a Roman city, and another of Jordan's jewels to be lost to the sands of time – quite literally in this case, as the ruins were hidden for centuries by the shifting dunes of the desert. Here, you can walk in the footsteps of Alexander the Great, Hadrian and Trajan wandering the colonnaded avenues of what is considered the best-preserved Roman city in the Middle East. Explore the enormous Forum and hippodrome, which still hosts chariot races, and admire ceremonial gates, temples, elaborate mosaics and carvings.

Amman

A relatively youthful city, Amman is a friendly and vibrant metropolis that offers its fair share to Jordan's rich culture and epic history. Only selected as capital as a small town in 1921, it grew quickly and energetically, keeping hold of the easy-going, accessible vibe that gives it so much charm. As it grew Amman's downtown encompassed what is known as the Citadel, a hilltop site that features Roman ruins, a world-class museum and atmospheric streets crammed with souks, coffee houses and mosques – it's here you need to stroll to catch a glimpse of a more traditional Jordanian life.

The Dead Sea

A spa destination for millennia, the Dead Sea (a misnomer, it's a lake) has long been famous for the therapeutic properties of its water. Nestled in the Great Rift Valley, it is fed by the river Jordan whose waters then evaporate at a rate of millions of litres per day leaving behind concentrated levels of salt and minerals. Wallowing in its waters and slathering yourself in its rich muds will exfoliate and heal and, apparently, leave you restored and beautified – whether that's true or not, floating in the super saline water is extremely relaxing.

Wadi Rum

Around 80% of Jordan's landscapes are variations of desert; Wadi Rum offers a particularly picturesque and accessible section to explore. Also known as the 'Valley of the Moon', the region has hosted humanity from the very beginning – there is ancient rock art and graffiti to discover among the geological formations – and is still home to nomadic Bedouins today. The plentiful siqs, arches and towering dunes change moods throughout the day, so it's good to spend enough time here to see them shift through hues of reds and purples; a luxurious desert camp is the best way.

Rajasthan – The Jewel in India's Crown

If you dream of an India of regal maharajas, grand palaces and mystical temples... then it's Rajasthan you've been dreaming of. Let us show you the wonders of this most regal of Indian states.

Jaipur

Forming one corner of India's Golden Triangle (Delhi and Agra making up the other two), the 'Pink City' of Jaipur is home to a treasure trove of historic buildings and sites dating back to the 18th century. Built to the specification of the ruling royal family, the city is home to an astonishing array of palaces, temples and architectural extravagance. Don't miss the opportunity to visit the impressive Amber Fort outside of the city, towering over the surrounding countryside.

Jaisalmer

Jaisalmer Fort rises like a fabulous mirage out of the sands of the Thar Desert. The impressive contours of its 99 bastions are softened by the amber hue of the stone that much of Jaisalmer is built from, earning it the moniker the 'Golden City'. In medieval times, Jaisalmer's entire population lived within the fort and to this day thousands of people still reside here, making it India's only living fort. Royal palaces, ancient Jain temples and merchant haveli mansions can all be found cheek by jowl within its walls.

Thar Desert

A vast stretch of wilderness stretching for over 200,000 km² on India's western border, the Thar Desert is a mesmerising landscape of huge shifting sand dunes and glimmering salt pans, boasting stunning sunrises, mesmerizing sunsets and dazzling night skies. A stay in a luxurious desert camp here is truly memorable. Meals are provided in the dining tent, which offers breath-taking views of the surrounding countryside, whilst evenings are livened up by campfires and local musicians and dancers.

Jodhpur

With its painted buildings scattered below the hilltop and huddled beneath ancient city walls, Jodhpur exudes a beautiful blue glow. Wandering through the city's jumbled streets will be a highlight of your India tour, as medieval lanes, bazaars and street food stalls entice your senses. Rising 120m above the city's skyline, Mehrangarh Fort is one of the most magnificent and best preserved forts in India, home to opulent palaces with meticulously carved stonework and latticed windows.

Ranthambore National Park

India's most famous and the most conveniently located tiger reserve, Ranthambore was once the hunting grounds of Maharajas and is now considered to be one of the country's most successful conservation programmes. Dotted with old ruins, including a grand fort, which the animals use for shelter, this is The Jungle Book brought to life. The park is renowned for its tiger population but you may be just as enthralled by the other wild animals you come across including leopard, nilgai, wild boar, sambar, hyena and sloth bear.

Delhi

This rambunctious capital city acts as the perfect introduction to the country as a whole, showcasing all the things that make India such a great destination: colour, cuisine, culture and chaos. Washed over by successive empires, the Mughals and the British have left the biggest mark. The Mughals contributed some of Old Delhi's biggest attractions – the Red Fort and Jama Masjid, with their mix of Islamic and Persian styles, whilst the British built New Delhi, in an extravagantly grand European style, as a show of power.

Taj Mahal, Agra

One of the most recognizable monuments in the world, the Taj Mahal is a glittering vision in white marble that is a worthy inclusion in the new Seven Wonders of the World. Built in the 17th century by the Mughal Emperor Shah Jahan in memory of his most beloved wife, the Taj Mahal rests resplendently at the centre of beautiful gardens perfectly framed by a clear sky. In the changing light of the rising and setting sun, the blaze of colour from the shimmering stone is simply breath-taking.

Lake Pichola, Udaipur

The tranquil waters of the 4km long Lake Pichola are framed by rolling hills, grand palaces and historic havelis, ghats and temples. Seeming to float on the surface of the lake itself, the elegant Lake Palace is now a luxury hotel and will be familiar to anyone of a certain vintage who has seen the James Bond movie Octopussy. Although the royal rulers have now moved out – they still reside in the grand City Palace that rises resplendently from the shores of the lake.

Rajasthan Panorama

22 days Fully Inclusive Touring from £3,390pp

Delhi – Alsisar – Gajner – Jaisalmer – Manvar – Jodhpur – Udaipur – Deogarh – Pushkar – Jaipur – Ranthambore National Park – Agra

Rajasthan conjures up images of maharajas and palaces and is regarded as one of the most colourful and exciting states in all of India. Marvel at the beauty of this region's diverse landscapes, as you travel across deserts, lakes and national parks.

MEET THE EXPERTS

Panoramic Peru

In our 'Meet the Experts' articles, we ask the destinations specialists in our Product Team to talk to us about some of their favourite places in the world and how we've built the perfect tours to show you them.

This week we talk to our Latin America specialist Carolina about Peru and our hugely popular tour, Panoramic Peru; a 15 day extravaganza full of fascinating Inca history, dazzling colonial towns and beautiful scenery.

Q. So what is the appeal of Peru for you?

Lee. For me Peru is one of South America's most enthralling destinations with magnificent Incan and Spanish colonial treasures and a natural beauty that ranges from vast canyons and mountains to steamy jungles and serene high plains. The people are incredibly hospitable, there's a rich mix of cultures and the food is delicious too!

Q. What would be the must see highlights?

Lee. Well we have to start with Machu Picchu, one of the most iconic sites in South America if not the world. It absolutely will not disappoint, it's an incredible place. Perched hundreds of metres above the surrounding valley, enveloped by lush jungle and mountains – the setting is simply breath-taking.

We stay overnight close to the ruins so you'll have plenty of time to explore and even access the site in the early morning before the crowds arrive on the first train. If you can manage the early start and the steps, I thoroughly recommend hiking up to the Sun Gate to see the sun rise over the ruins – magnificent!

Cusco and the Sacred Valley: Home to an incredible Incan legacy, Cusco has some of the richest heritage in Latin America. The whole city is a UNESCO World Heritage Site and it's a fascinating mix of Inca temples and Spanish cathedrals sometimes quite literally right on top of each other. We see a local folk performance here which is a fascinating insight into the local culture. The city is also full of charming squares ringed by cafes and restaurants and there is a real buzz about the place. The Sacred Valley surrounding the city is home to some huge Incan ruins, often perched up in spectacular lofty positions, and the market town of Pisac is also a great place to pick up some souvenirs.

Arequipa: I just love Arequipa. Surrounded by towering volcanoes that always seem to be framed by the most perfect blue sky, it enjoys a sensational location. Built out of a smooth volcanic white stone, the whole city gleams in the high altitude sunshine earning it the nickname 'The White City'. There's some lovely baroque colonial architecture to admire and the city is renowned for its dining scene. We shop in the San Camilo market here for ingredients to cook with a local family which is a really lovely experience.

The Colca Canyon: Twice as deep as the Grand Canyon and over a hundred kilometres long, the Colca Canyon is awesome in the true sense of the word. Sitting on the edge of the canyon gazing out over ancient Inca terraces and watching huge condors soaring on the thermals above you is just wonderful. To top things off, once you've finished drinking in the views you can go and hop into the relaxing waters of the local hot springs.

Lake Titicaca: The first thing that strikes you about Lake Titicaca is the colour, the water is the most incredible cobalt blue. The main draw here is the Floating Islands of Uros – what a name eh? – where communities have woven floating homes out of reeds that drift along on the lake. But actually what stuck with me more was spending time on the island of Taquile and meeting the local villagers. It was so peaceful and the beauty of the setting really struck me.

Q. How about the lesser known gems?

Lee. People often rush right through Lima on their way to the Inca heartlands and this is a real mistake in my opinion. The riches of Latin America flowed through Lima in colonial times and it shows. The city has a beautiful historic centre with some stupendous baroque cathedrals, monasteries and mansions. It's also got the best dining scene in the country, we enjoy a great meal here with a pisco tasting, the national drink and my new favourite tippie!

The day spent in the remote village of Huilloc, in the Sacred Valley, was also really memorable. I got a real insight into the Quechua culture, met and chatted with the villagers and even sat down to a lovely lunch with them after a cooking demonstration. At the other end of the scale, riding the luxury Andean Explorer train from Cusco to Puno and tucking into delicious food whilst the scenery of the altiplano rolled by was a luxurious treat.

Q. What about the hotels on the tour?

Lee. I'm really proud of the hotels we feature on this tour, they really are first class. For example, the hotel we use in Cusco (Palacio del Inka) is a beautiful 500 year old mansion and located in front of the Temple of the Sun, whilst the hotel in Puno is located right on Lake Titicaca with beautiful views of the highest navigable lake in the world. The property in the Sacred Valley is a 17th century hacienda!

Q. What do our customers think?

"The tour was superb from start to finish. Peru is such a beautiful country and we now fully appreciate why the tour is called 'Panoramic'.

All the hotels were first class, and all the restaurants used were very good. Every day was packed full of activities that were extremely well organised and immersed you fully in the history, culture, geography and wildlife of Peru. The day long train journey from Cusco to Puno on the shore of Lake Titicaca was total luxury and passed through miles and miles of endless scenery.

The national escort was Wilbert. He was excellent in every respect and had so much knowledge of the country. Such a pleasant and talented man. It was an absolute pleasure to travel with him. He was clearly very keen to ensure everyone had a safe, fantastic and very memorable holiday. Which we all did."

Why you should visit Vietnam in 2022

Vietnam will always be one of the world's most beautiful and intriguing destinations; 2022's reopening offers a window of opportunity like no other. Right now, world-famous destinations like Halong Bay, Sapa and Hoi An are quiet and peaceful, in a state not seen for a decade or more.

This gives us the chance to see the country at its most authentic, to enjoy Hoi An's fluttering lanterns without the crowds, to admire the breath-taking karst islands of Halong Bay in a state of tranquillity, and so much more.

So, what are you waiting for?

Big name destinations, without the crowds...

If your dreams include big-name destinations like Sapa or Hue - and who could blame you? - then 2022 is a wonderful time to join us for a tour, beating other international tourists to the punch. You'll see Sapa's world-famous rice terraces at the quietest they've ever been and walk trails that have hardly been disturbed for two years.

2022 will also be a particularly wonderful time to visit the scholarly city of Hue. The seat of emperors from 1802 to 1945, at Hue's heart is its Forbidden Purple City – atmospheric, beautiful and extraordinarily photogenic, and quieter now than we can ever remember.

Of course, some major cities like Hanoi and Saigon will always be full of life, with or without the tourists – and we love them for it. Vintage Vespas still whoosh through Saigon's streets and locals throng at pavement cafés to exchange news while sipping Hanoi's famous 'egg coffee'. But how wonderful would it be to experience these cities now? To explore the monuments of Hanoi's Ho Chi Minh Quarter in peace, or to see Saigon's French Colonial architecture without a queue in sight?

Off the beaten track...

We always endeavour to take you off the beaten track – consider our cruise ship, the Victoria Mekong, which takes you to parts of the Mekong Delta overlooked by others, or the wonderful region of Mai Chau – a paradisiacal valley of stepped rice terraces, carefully cultivated by villagers from the local hilltribes - it's far less known to tourists than its visually similar cousin Sapa.

If you thought these lesser-known spots were quiet before, now they're so peaceful as to feel almost zen.

Experience Vietnamese hospitality

Whichever part of the country you visit, Vietnam has a wonderful reputation for hospitality – but never more so than now, when its people are hungry to reconnect with the wider world. Visitors have been sorely missed by the guides, restaurants, and hotel workers who work hard to showcase the wonders of their beautiful country so you can be sure that you'll be welcomed with open arms.

Ideal autumn weather

Truth be told, there is no truly bad time to visit Vietnam: the country has something to offer at any time of year. That said, many consider Vietnam to be at its most charming from October to December, when the monsoon rains have abated, leaving behind lush fields and full rivers.

October is one of the best times to see northern highlands like Sapa and Mai Chau, when dry weather and stable temperature make ideal conditions for trekking and photography; you'll also spot the locals working the fields during the rice harvest at this time. Down south, in the Mekong Delta, the river is at its best, filled by the rains. The riverbanks are at their greenest, and the stilt houses at their most impressive, perched over the gently rolling waters.

2022 offers the perfect opportunity to visit this beloved and magical destination, to experience Vietnam at its most peaceful and authentic – this is a window not to be missed!

Beyond Vietnam: Cambodia, Borneo and more...

Across Asia, doors are open or in the process of being unlocked. Borneo is reopening its doors, while the Philippines and Cambodia have been open to tourists for some months now. It's a well-kept secret, it seems, as iconic world wonders like the glorious Temples of Angkor remain surprisingly peaceful at present.

Momentum is building, however, with many travellers already booked for 2023 and 2024. Of course, Angkor will be no less beautiful in the years to come, nor its sunsets less spectacular – but how wonderful to behold that sunset in the exceptional peace it has now.

Visitors have been greatly missed in Vietnam, Cambodia and beyond. Why wait? Come now and experience Southeast Asia's boundless hospitality in this extraordinary period of renewal and regrowth, with the region at its most authentic.

Laos and Cambodia Unveiled

No one can bring our tours to life better than those who have seen, done and experienced it all first-hand. Maureen and Alan travelled with us on our Laos and Cambodia Unveiled Tour.

Our compact group of eleven travellers enjoyed the Laos and Cambodia Unveiled itinerary with Wendy Wu Tours. It was a fascinating trip packed with many insights into the day to day lives of these very friendly people. We always received a very warm welcome despite the fact that many of them lived with very little. It was a very humbling experience.

A Real Insight into Local Life

We visited schools, were welcomed into local villagers' homes, enjoyed temples, stupas, pagodas, caves, waterfalls and museums. We learnt about rice paper making, weaving, making fishing nets by hand, paper making, pottery work, jewellery making, wood and stone carving. We dived into local market shopping for food, flowers and handicrafts and even met the local wildlife at a bear rescue centre and elephant sanctuary.

The architecture is absolutely stunning with an overwhelming amount of gold leaf symbolising the light of the sun, ornate stencils and tiles, vivid mirror mosaics, wood and stone carvings and many, many buddhas, of course.

Giving something back

We were particularly impressed that a number of the restaurants we dined in were either vocational training restaurants, a training restaurant for marginalised youth, or helping sick children. The restaurants are part of the Tree Alliance whose profits are used to give students a helping hand into the hospitality industry.

We were also honoured to participate in an early morning alms giving ceremony known as a Tak Bat ritual in Laos. It is a living Buddhist tradition for the people of Luang Prabang where we helped serve hot sticky rice to the local saffron-robed monks. There were over a hundred monks and we made sure they all received a fair share!

Exhilarating Experiences

We enjoyed some fascinating boat trips on the Angkor moat and Tonle Sap Lake. On our last night in Phnom Penh we even experienced a beautiful sunset cruise on the Mekong, but the best fun was on the crazy Bamboo Train in Battambang and the exhilarating cyclo tour in Phnom Penh. Of course, Angkor Wat was the highlight – it is the largest religious monument in the world. The view from the Central Sanctuary at the top was well worth the steep climb.

A Treat for the Taste Buds

On several occasions we watched traditional dancers and musicians whilst dining. In fact, we enjoyed plenty of excellent fresh food in some stunning locations. It was a very well thought out and varied itinerary.

In the markets, and even some restaurants, we saw some extraordinary food which was not for the faint hearted – such as fried crickets, barbecued rats and deep-fried tarantulas!

As always, this Wendy Wu tour offered the unexpected plus lots of wonderful experiences whilst still caring about the local people and helping to contribute to their wellbeing.

Thank you to Maureen for your wonderful write up and photos.
